North Woodstock's Main Street, year unknown.

Car travelers on Main Street, North Woodstock circa 1900.

The buildings in the background are Hallsworth's Photograph Studio and home, which are now a flower and gift shop and Woodstock Inn Riverside.

A Brief History of the Woodstock Inn

The Woodstock Inn opened during Christmas of 1982.

The Main House is over 100 years old and was occupied by the Clement Family—after whom the main dining room is named—for most of its 100 years. After being empty for approximately 20 years, the house was restored and finished as closely as possible to its original decor. To meet the demand for more seating, the wraparound porch was enclosed in the Summer of 1984.

The Inn has six guest rooms, individually appointed. Recognizing the need for more rooms, the home across the street from the Main House was purchased and renovated to provide eleven more rooms with private baths. The Deachman House behind the Woodstock Inn joined our family in 1995, and four guest rooms with a Victorian flavor were added. Finally, in the fall of 2001, we gutted the Sawyer House to add three beautifully appointed bedrooms. In 2006, The Cascades Lodge was purchased and fully renovated in an Adirondack style.

Behind the Inn now sits the original Lincoln Railroad Station which was moved in two halves from Lincoln and refurbished in the Summer of 1984. The Station is now the Lounge for the Inn and features a pub-style menu for lunch and dinner, along with nightly entertainment.

The Spring of 1995 ushered in a new phase when the Woodstock Inn Brewery produced its first barrel of handcrafted ale. The Woodstock Inn Brewery & Brewpub operates year-round and has six unique brews and homemade root beer on tap everyday.

We don't know what's next, but we'll continue to improve and we appreciate your comments as well as your continued patronage.
